SECTION ONE: READING COMPREHENSION (7 points)

Read the passage carefully then answer the questions.

"Drug Addiction: A New Phenomenon"

1 The increase in drug dependence among young people is creating new problems for educators who need to grasp the true nature of the phenomenon in order to carry out their duties. The non-medical use of drugs has always existed but in forms which have little in common with drug dependence among young people as we know it today. It was not until the late 1960's that drug abuse began to appear among young people and children and eventually became a world problem.

2 It is therefore both mistaken and dangerous to assume that the present situation is simply the continuation of the past. It is mistaken because only today have drugs become a culture which everyone must face. It is dangerous because it makes people less vigilant and encourages both passivity and acceptance.

3 Educators must be aware of the dangers that drugs present for children and adolescents, understand the causes of the situation and the forces underlying them, and introduce appropriate remedial measures into the educational process. It is believed that drug dependence among young people is due to factors caused by the changes and tensions of modern society. It has been maintained that young people at a certain stage refused to be dominated by the adult culture, and reacted against the idea of being excluded from the construction of the future society in which they would have to live. Drug abuse was essentially a deliberate insult and provocation of young people towards adults.
