SECTION ONE : READING COMPREHENSION (08 pts)

Read the passage carefully then do the activities .

Demography is the study of the change in size , distribution and character of the human population ; and the two basic factors in demography are the birth - rate and the death-rate . The former expresses the number of children-born per thousand people per year , while the latter indicates the number of people who die per thousand people per year . If we consider the Earth as a whole , we see that population growth or decline is caused by the difference between the number of births or deaths over a given period . There are normally more births than deaths , and this is known as a natural increase in population .

Before the recent developments in agriculture , medicine and industry , life was difficult. It was hard to make a living from the soil without modern farming methods ; and a few years of bad crops could mean famine and therefore death - as it still does in some parts of the world . Illnesses as mild and as common as influenza could kill a Stone- Age man weakened by hunger ; appendicitis (almost without risk today) was always fatal before the days of modern surgery . Even childbirth was a hazardous process . Under these conditions , the human race needed to reproduce at a high rate just to keep in existence . But the size of the population did not change very rapidly because without modern medicine , many babies and young children died . So , for a long time , the population grew very slowly .
